I saw a rosebud on its stem
Gemmed with the morning dew,
Which like a pearly diadem
A radiance round it threw:
Lovely it looked — when lo! a gust
Of winter laid it in the dust.

So beauty in the morn of youth
Basks in life's sunny ray;
And gay deceptions deluded like truth,
Promise maturer day —
Disease comes o'er it steals its bloom
And swells the victims to the tomb

The Bark of Life.

The bark of life o'er the waters of strife
Has long been sailing slow;
With sudden lost, and tempest-tossed,
It bears its weight of woe.

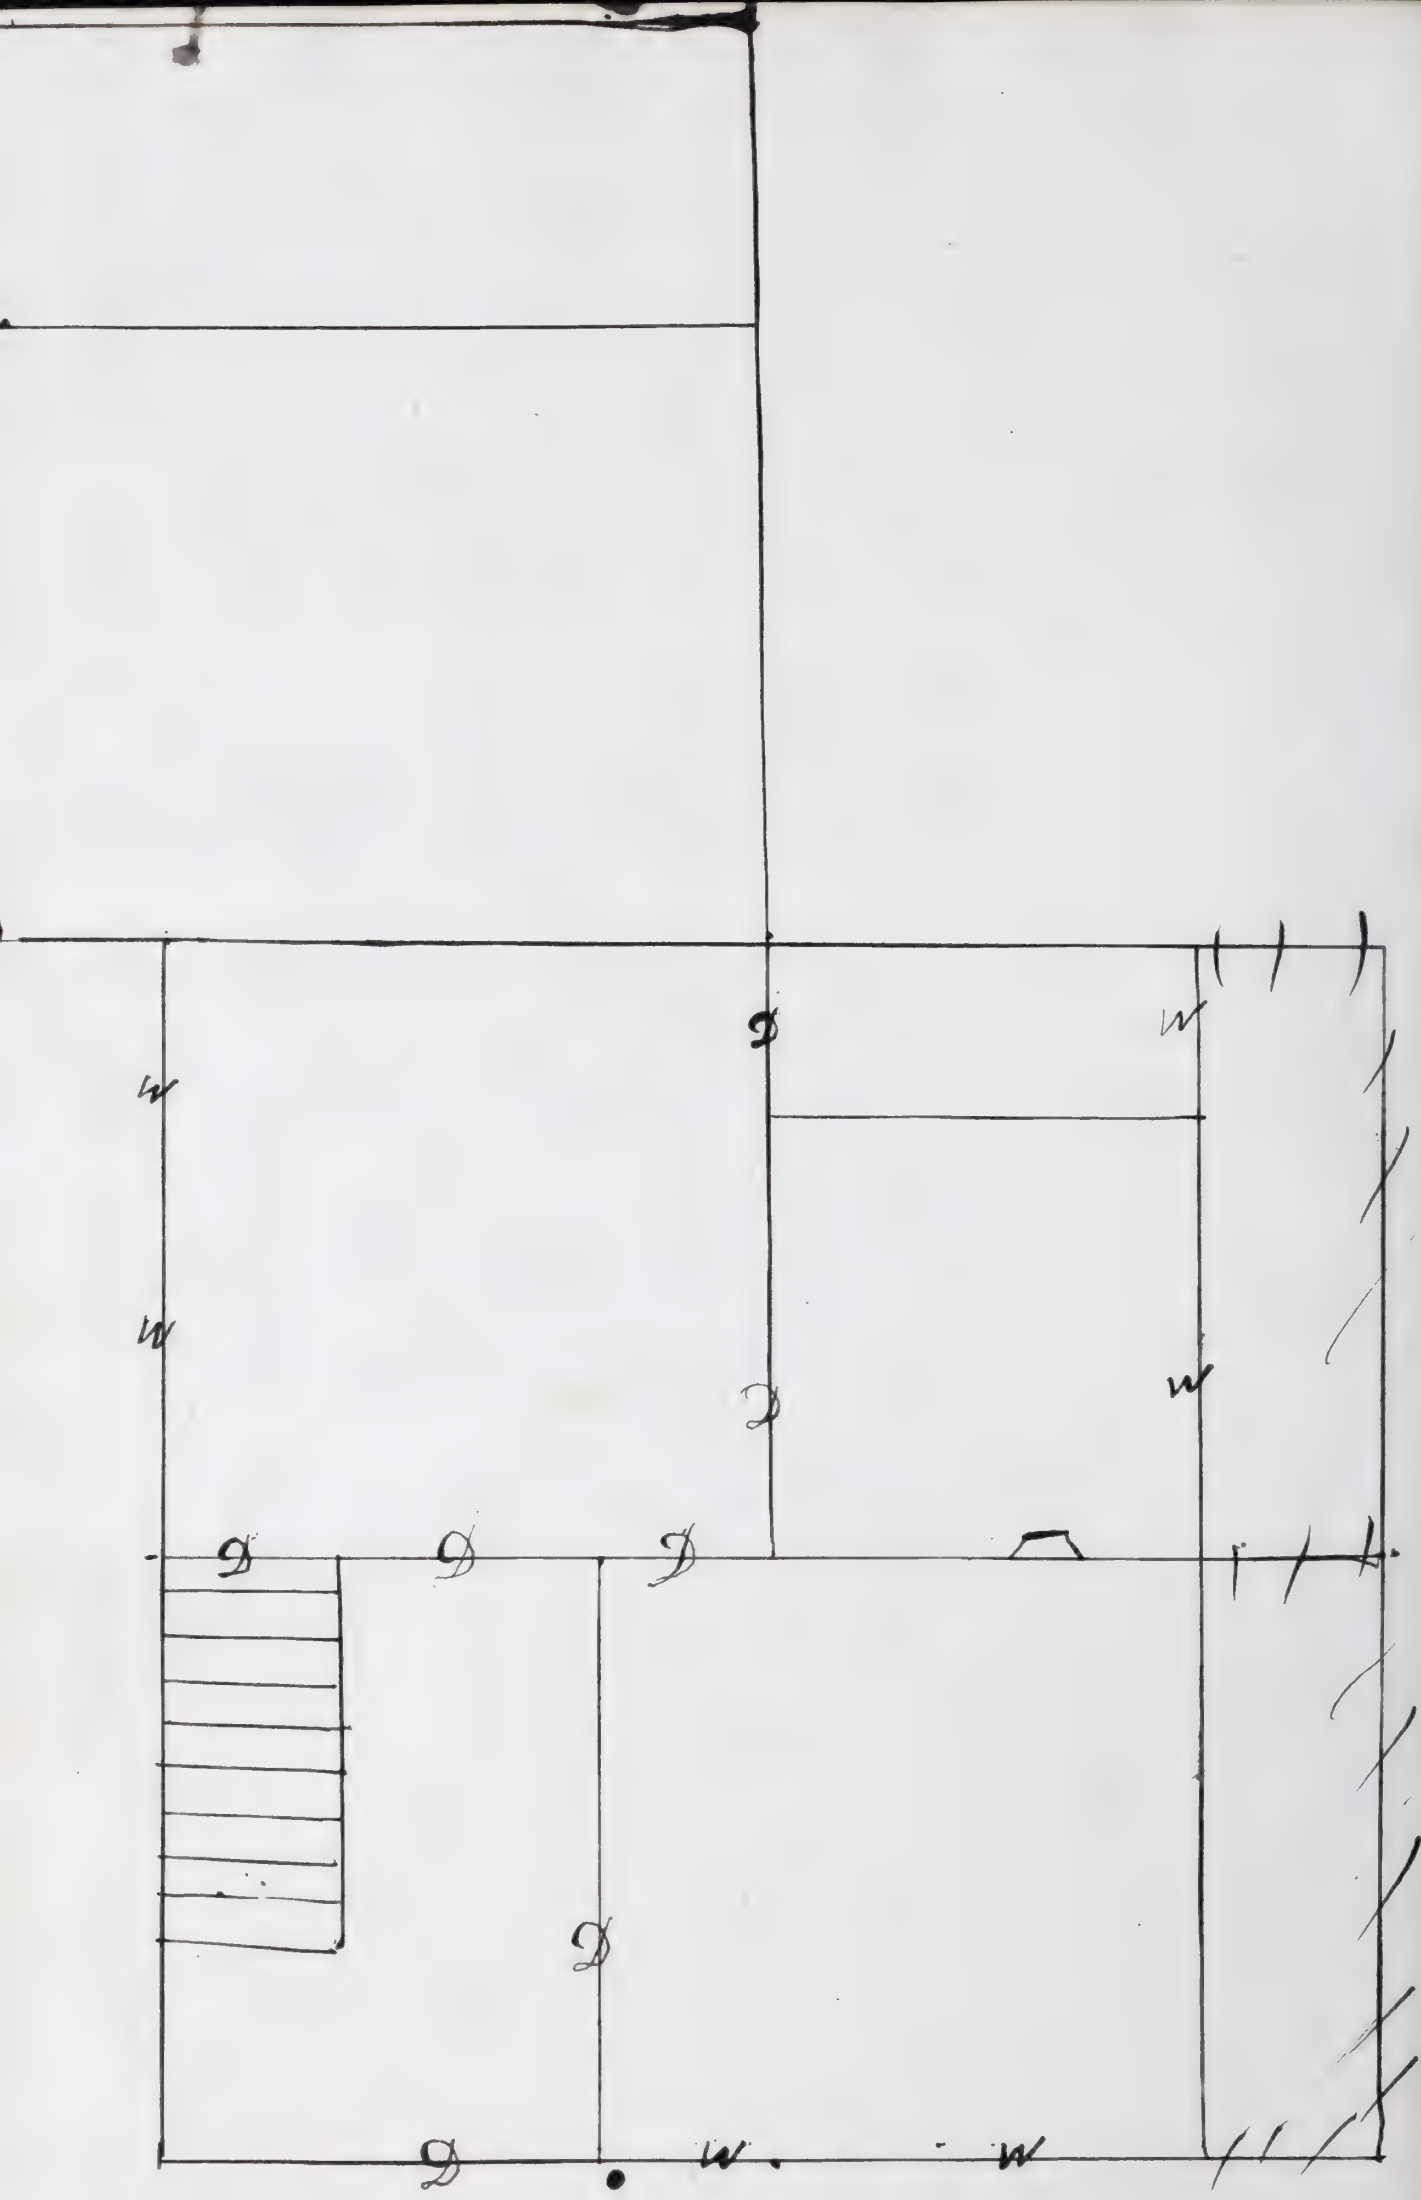
Like a troubled dream does my voyage seem,
So rough has been its course;
For against my bark the billows dark
Have spent their utmost force.

As a living grave over the sullen wave,
Listless my bark moves on;
And clouds of ill are hovering still,
Though the direful storm be gone.

Now all around a gloom profound
Enshrouds the circling air:
Of hope bereft my bark is left
A prey to dull despair.

But see from afar heaven's polar star,
The beacon of grace shines clear;
And the radiance bright of that blessed light
Dispels each gloomy fear.

Faith springs the gale that fills my sail,
And wafts me towards the shore—
That land of peace, where troubles cease,
And sorrows is no more.



Is it in splendid courts
Of equipage and show
In vain fantastic sports
Where mirth and tumult grow

Is it in rich array
Bedecked with Gold
Where splendor leads the way
Just to be told

Is it in martial train
Of wars dread sound
Where oft the Heros slain
And carnage strews the ground

Is it on ocean's wave,
Our country's flag to bear;
To find a watery grave
Where toils and dangers are

Where then can it be found
I've sought the camp— the grave
This earthly ball I've traveled round
And e'en sought it in love

Go to the word of [redacted] life divine go read its pages o'er then to its sacred truths incline
And find true Happiness forevermore
